Iran boils over

Newly re-elected Mahmoud Ahmadinejad brushes off election uprising

Associated Press

TEHRAN Protesters set fires and smashed store windows Sunday in a second day of violence as groups challenging Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's re-election tried to keep pressure on authorities. Anti-riot police lashed back and the regime blocked Internet sites used to rally the pro-reform campaign.

Ahmadinejad dismissed Tehran's worst unrest in a decade as "not important," comparing it to passions after a football match. He insisted Friday's vote was "real and free" and the results showing his landslide victory were fair and legitimate. Along Tehran's Vali Asr street—where activists supporting rival candidate Mir Hossein Mousavi held a huge pre-election rally last week—tens of thousands marched in support of Ahmadinejad, waving Iranian flags and shouting his name.

Mousavi sent a letter to the Guardian Council—a powerful clerical group—calling

U.S. response

WASHINGTON The re-election of Iran's hard-line president amid charges of ballot fraud has put the Obama administration in a tougher spot as it tries to draw theocratic Tehran into nuclear diplomacy without appearing to accept suppression of dissent.

Vice President Joe Biden said Sunday that for the election to be canceled. He has claimed that he was the real winner.

"Fraud is evident and review and nullification is requested," said the letter posted on Mousavi's Web site. Mousavi also met Iran's supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei to discuss his fraud allegations.

Shahab Tabatabaei, a prominent activist in Mousavi's pro-reform camp, said Mousavi called on Khamenei to order cancellation of the election results.

The violence has pushed Iran's Islamic estab-efforts to engage Tehran, with the central goal of stopping it from getting nuclear weapons, will continue. But the disputed election outcome and the official crackdown on opposition protests appears to be a major setback, at least in the short run, for the new U.S. administration, which has made engagement with Iran one of its signature foreign policies.

lishment to respond with sweeping measures. They have deployed anti-riot squads around the capital and cut mobile phone messaging and Internet sites used by Mousavi's campaign.

There is little chance the youth-driven movement could immediately threaten the pillars of power in Iran—the ruling clerics and the vast network of military and intelligence forces at their command. But their discontent raises the possibility that a sustained and growing backlash could complicate Iran's policies at a pivotal time.

These are the tweets of our lives

Last time, on "The Young and the Clueless," Amanda awoke in a Havana hospital suffering from amnesia. The only hints to her identity were scattered about her bed—a black rose, a laptop and a shirtless man named Ricardo.

Compelling, isn't it? Well, unfortunately, that soap opera exists only in my imagination. But there's another one that's taking on a life of its own online that I think you'll enjoy. And while most people associate soaps with TV, Kirsten Osolind, author of "Chicago to Coronado," is creating a new era of storytelling using the Web and social media. It's unique—and so is her story.

Osolind, a former marketing agency CEO in Chicago, says the story line is loosely based on her personal reinvention and relocation from Chicago to Coronado, Calif., in 2008. She says her ultimate goal is to flip the traditional entertainment model—starting with social media and branching out to a TV series and eventually to books and other products.

"Chicago to Coronado" has the social media landscape covered. It's written in 140-word tweets that are sent at random, but it has a home on Flickr, Facebook and Vimeo, a video-sharing site. And this might be the coolest part: The characters lead active online lives—they Yelp, have Amazon reading/wish lists and LinkedIn profiles.

There are six characters that have star billing on Twitter, Osolind says, including @kirsteno (a "culturally challenged" romantic) and @nadodeeogee (an "unleashed" dog). Osolind says other characters are being introduced as the story is evolving and she encourages fans to get involved at chicagotocoronado.com.

And Osolind makes sure that involvement pays off.

I asked her if I could be a character. I introduced myself as the handsome-although-slightly-balding, spectacle-wearing RedEye editor seeking passion through social media in Chicago. She said she'd write me in as a friend to @chicagoechochick, and that one of the fun parts of the soap is that real-life tweeps and events are woven into the story line.

Voila. Instant fame. Maybe I can be more of than a friend to @chicagoechochick. But what would my wife say? Tune in, log on and find out.

What do you think of social media soaps? Tweet me, poke me—just tell me. I promise to get back to you after these words from our sponsors.

Blago guest stars in show about Blago

Associated Press

Ousted Gov. Rod Blagojevich doesn't seem to mind being the butt of a theatrical joke.

Blagojevich got in on the joke Saturday evening, appearing as himself in a comedy show that lampoons the rise and fall of his own political career.

He opened The Second City's "Rod Blagojevich Superstar," a parody of the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar," standing on a chair with his arms raised as if he were being crucified.

The show—which portrays Blagojevich as greedy, tactless and hair-obsessed—opened in February and was supposed to end Sunday. But production officials extended it to Aug. 9 due to constant sold-out performances. A full house cheered as Blagojevich, who was removed from office in January and has pleaded not guilty to wide-ranging federal corruption charges, appeared on stage wearing a suit and tie.

"Where were you when I was impeached?" he asked the audience.

Blagojevich is accused of scheming to sell or trade President Obama's former U.S. Senate seat and using the muscle of the governor's office to get campaign donations. He has denied any wrongdoing.

Before the nearly hourlong show—which includes duets with an actor portraying Sen. Roland Burris—the ex-governor told the audience he hadn't seen the production before, but assured them it was a "fictitious account" of his life.

As soon as Blagojevich left the stage, cast members launched into a song that asks, "What kind of idiot sells a Senate seat?"

Actor Joey Bland, who portrayed Blagojevich by wearing a black turtleneck and helmet-like black wig, called it "the most surreal day of my life."

Bringing Air Force One anywhere isn't cheap

Chicago Tribune

As President Obama flies Monday to Chicago for a midday speech on health-care reform, the round trip on Air Force One will run about $236,000, according to government estimates of the operating costs for one of the top symbols—and perks—of the presidency.

But that does not include such expenses as Secret Service protection, motorcades and helicopter transports.

After landing at O'Hare, Obama is scheduled to spend about 2 1/2 hours here. To avoid snarling traffic on the Kennedy, he will likely be transported from the airport by helicopter to a location near the Hyatt Regency Chicago.

A Government Accounting Office report in 2000 showed Air Force One to cost $54,100 to operate each flight hour, or almost $67,000 in today's dollars. It is a tough number to estimate, however, because of so many variables and fixed costs that could be included in or excluded from the calculation.

But the bill, White House aides say, is one that is largely unavoidable because of the security and communication needs required by the modern president. Perhaps aware of the costs of Air Force One, the Obama family

Air Force One facts

THE NAME

Although the term "Air Force One" conjures up images of a white and blue Boeing 747 with the presidential seal, it applies to any Air Force plane carrying the president.

THE PLANES

Two customized Boeing 747-200B planes are used as Air Force One primarily. Both entered service in 1990 and are based at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

THE BIG SUITE

The presidential suite includes an office, conference room, bathroom with shower and sleeping quarters.

THE PROTECTION

An anti-missile system protects against heat-seeking missiles.

THE OTHER FEATURES

» State-of-the-art navigation, electronics and communications systems

» 85 telephones, 19 TVs and six bathrooms

» Can be refueled in the air and used as a mobile command center

» A medical suite that can be used as an operating room. A doctor always is onboard.

» Two food galleys that can feed 100 people at a time has used the plane for just one recreational trip to Chicago in his first five months in office.

As expensive as that trip was, it is still roughly half the distance President Bush routinely flew to visit his ranch near Crawford, Texas.

Anywhere the president flies, the government picks up the tab because he is always the commander-in-chief and might at any time be called into a crisis. Some limited cost sharing is done if he is traveling to a purely political event, such as a fundraiser.

"The White House is committed to following all of the relevant rules and regulations regarding the reimbursement for travel expenses," spokesman Tommy Vietor said.

The small "pool" of reporters and photographers who travel with Obama on Air Force One for both government and political trips reimburse the government for the cost of their seats.

DID YOU KNOW?*Flag Day has roots here

Flag Day, celebrated yearly on June 14, is a holiday with its roots firmly planted in Chicago.

A teacher in Waubeka, Wis., Bernard J. Cigrand, had the first formal Flag Day observance in 1885, according to a 2002 Chicago Tribune story. Cigrand, the son of Luxembourg immigrants, moved to Chicago in 1886 to become a dentist and brought with him a passion for the flag that led him to push for creation of the holiday in speeches and newspaper articles.

He lobbied for two decades before convincing the government. In 1916, President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed the national observance of Flag Day. The holiday was signed into law 33 years later, though it is not an official federal holiday.

1 dead in Dan Ryan crash

One woman was killed and six other people hurt in a rollover traffic crash Saturday on the Dan Ryan. Killed was Earnese Cooper, 63, of St. Louis, said a spokesman for the Cook County medical examiner's office. The crash happened about 2:30 p.m. in the southbound lanes of the highway at 96th Street, just north of where the Dan Ryan connects to the Bishop Ford, officials said.

Woman charged in bed fire

A West Side woman was held in lieu of $500,000 bail Saturday, accused of setting her estranged husband's bed on fire. The man wasn't home at the time, but other people were in the apartment, including the man's 85-year-old grandfather, who had to be hospitalized for smoke inhalation, according to prosecutors. Kristy Ballard, 30, climbed in her husband's bedroom window in the 5200 block of West Palmer Street the night of June 1 and set fire to his bed, officials said.

Metra tickets going online

After lagging behind the CTA for years in letting passengers use credit cards to buy tickets, Metra will start selling them via the Internet in September, officials said. Metra announced last month that credit card purchases would be available by February. That will still be the case at stations, but riders will have the online option to buy monthly passes and 10-ride tickets in three months, Metra Executive Director Phil Pagano said.

Shedd free for a week

A week's worth of free general admission started Sunday at the Shedd Aquarium. The Shedd Aquarium's Oceanarium just reopened after a $50 million renovation. The Shedd is open every day from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Free general admission, which does not include admission to special exhibits, ends Friday.

He has zero problems

Tom Feddor shows off some of the parking tickets he received—all in error—because he has a license plate with the number “O.” ANTONIO PEREZ/TRIBUNE

Tom Feddor has the lowest vehicle license plate number in Illinois on his Range Rover.

If you're thinking “1,” think lower.

The plate number, which has been in Feddor's family for almost 40 years, is simply “o.”

But there's a problem. The City of Chicago has his number. It zeroed in by mailing him dozens of ticket notices for parking-related violations dating to July 2008. More than 80 ticket notices issued to Feddor's o plates are listed on a city Web site, including 38 this year. The violations are for things like parking at expired meters; parking with the motor running in the Wrigley Field bus-permit zone; parking during street-cleaning hours; running stop signs or traffic signals; operating a hazardous dilapidated vehicle; failing to display a residential parking permit; blocking access to an alley, driveway or fire lane; and parking a truck, recreational vehicle, bus or taxi on a residential street.

As if that's not bad enough, none of the tickets was placed on his vehicle. It was nowhere near the scenes of the alleged infractions.

A glitch occurred at the Chicago Department of Revenue involving Feddor's o plates being used during tests of ticketing equipment. The error prompted the cascade of ticket notices to land in his mailbox, city officials determined after launching an investigation based on calls from the Tribune.

It turned out that some city parking enforcement aides punched in o when testing their electronic ticket-issuing devices, Revenue Department spokesman Ed Walsh said. Officials weren't aware that there actually was a o plate or that Feddor was receiving tickets, Walsh said.

“The test violations should have been dismissed in the database. The majority of the cases he (Feddor) contested successfully. But we are taking steps to rectify the situation so in the future an actual registered plate number will not be used to do the testing,” Walsh said.

Feddor will be refunded money if he made payments on tickets erroneously issued, Walsh said.

OH!

Adding to Tom Feddor's headaches are a set of Illinois plates with the letter “O” that are registered to convicted felon Lawrence Warner, a co-defendant in the corruption trial of Gov. George Ryan. Which means Feddor has received ticket notices from the city that actually should have gone to Warner.

Your stimulus funds at work on the Kennedy

Construction work to improve traffic flow on entrance and exit ramps on the Kennedy Expressway downtown is scheduled to start Monday and affect traffic until the late fall, the state Transportation Department said Sunday.

Work will start early Monday on the stretch of the Kennedy between Hubbard's Cave and the Eisenhower Expressway interchange.

The $9.3 million project will include resurfacing, retaining wall repairs and ramp reconstruction, as well realigning ramps in the area. Motorists are urged to consider alternate routes.

The first phase of the project will close and reconstruct the Jackson Boulevard and Adams and Monroe Street ramps on the southbound side of the expressway.

The northbound Monroe exit ramp also will be permanently closed in the first phase, the department said. Traffic to the Loop will be diverted to other exits. Newly realigned exits will open later in the summer before the beginning of the second stage of work.

In the second phase, the center entrance ramps will be realigned and one lane in each direction between Van Buren and Lake Streets will be closed to accommodate reconstruction work.

The project is being funded with federal tax money through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, often termed stimulus funds.

Seeking clues

1 The recovered tailfin of the Air France A330 aircraft lost over the Atlantic Ocean on June 1 is unloaded from a ship at Recife, Brazil. On Sunday, a ship towing a high-tech listening device was set to troll the Atlantic in search of data and voice recorders.

Change of pace

2 Speaking in Jerusalem, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu endorsed an independent Palestinian state beside Israel for the first time Sunday, dramatically reversing himself in the face of U.S. pressure but attaching conditions Palestinians swiftly rejected.

Attacking the Taliban

3 Pakistan ordered its army to go after the country's top Taliban commander, a feared militant whose remote stronghold could prove a difficult test for troops but whose demise would be a major blow to the insurgencies here and in Afghanistan.

Museum shooting suspect

4 Authorities say the man charged with killing a security guard at the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum will likely survive the injuries he suffered when other museum guards returned fire.

Cat case arrest

5 A teenager was arrested Sunday and accused of killing and mutilating the cats of his neighbors—a disturbing string of deaths that has horrified residents and shaken animal lovers in two Miami-area communities.

$430,000

A rare Abraham Lincoln stamp that was stolen from Indiana in 1967 and surfaced 39 years later in Chicago has sold at auction in New York for more than $430,000.

Woman gets a replay in file-sharing lawsuit

7 MINNEAPOLIS The Minnesota woman who became the nation's only music file-sharing defendant so far to go to trial is getting a replay two years after losing the case.

Jammie Thomas-Rasset, a 32-year-old mother of four and self-described "huge music fan," will be armed with aggressive new lawyers when her retrial begins in federal court here Monday.

The lawsuit is among the last vestiges of an anti-piracy campaign that the recording industry ultimately dropped amid widespread criticism. The Recording Industry Association of America said in December it had stopped filing lawsuits like these and would work instead with Internet service providers to cut access to those it deems illegal file-sharers. But the recording industry plans to proceed with cases that are already filed.

Thomas-Rasset is the rare defendant who has fought back.

Thomas-Rasset's new lawyer, K.A.D. Camara, said he hoped to turn Thomas-

Rasset's retrial into a trial against the RIAA, both before the jury and in the court of public opinion. A win by the defense, he said, could undermine the other music-sharing cases.

RIAA spokeswoman Cara Duckworth insisted the music companies will again prevail, just as they had in 2007 when a federal jury in Duluth found Thomas-Rasset violated copyrights by offering 24 songs on the Kazaa file-sharing network.

She was ordered to pay $222,000 in damages, or $9,250 per song.

Closer look at Cubs, Sox fans

The stereotypes of Cubs and White Sox fans are tried, but not necessarily true. A Scarborough Research survey of Chicago-area adults who had attended a major pro sports event in the last year revealed that fans of the city's two baseball teams are more alike than they'd like to admit. Whizzer puts his prophetic powers to use to preview Cubs-Sox series

By Whizzer

It's that time of year again: Cubs vs. White Sox. It's also time for my walk, but I guess that will have to wait.

Since I know a lot of people are living and dying (hopefully more living) by the outcome of the City Series, I thought I'd give you a taste of what's to come.

My crystal ball tells me ...

At Wrigley Field

7:05 p.m. Tuesday, WGN/CSN

It's a night game, so you know what that means: Wrigley Field turns into Club Wrigley. I don't care what that survey says (see sidebar), Wrigley is one big party during night games—and this series just amplifies it. Too bad the on-field action will not live up to the hype. Let's just say the most interesting part of this game will be Ellen DeGeneres' version of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game."

PREDICTION: Cubs 3, White Sox 0

At Wrigley Field

1:20 p.m. Wednesday, WGN/CSN

If the Cubs and Sox weren't already playing sloppy baseball this year, you could blame this game on the early start after a night game. In either case, this turns into a pitchers' duel as winless and luckless Cub Randy Wells flirts with a no-hitter while the Sox's Gavin Floyd redeems himself in fans' eyes.

PREDICTION: Cubs 3, White Sox 0 (Yes, same score, that's not a typo.)

At Wrigley Field

1:20 p.m. Thursday, WGN/CSN

Rain is in the forecast, but that should not be a surprise. The Cubs and Sox have both been dogged (Hey, why is that a negative term in the English language?) by rain delays and postponements all season. The only thing postponed by the rain Thursday is Cubs fans' disappointment. Ryan Dempster can't keep it together on the mound, Milton Bradley can't get it together and the Cubs fall together.

PREDICTION: White Sox 7, Cubs 3

At U.S. Cellular Field

3:05 p.m. June 26, WGN/CSN

Welcome home, Ozzie Guillen. We all know how much you hate Wrigley, so this should make you feel better, right? Well, not so fast. The Cubs show you firsthand why Jake Peavy and Roy Oswalt didn't want to pitch at the Cell as Derrek Lee, Geovany Soto and Alfonso Soriano all go yard in a laughter.

PREDICTION: Cubs 10, White Sox 4

GAME 5

At U.S. Cellular Field

3:05 p.m. June 27, Fox

Maybe it's the national audience, maybe it's the overall improvement of the teams or maybe it's the shoes. Whatever it is, this game is a classic. Well-pitched, clutch hitting, comebacks and ... free baseball! Paul Konerko hits a walk-off grand slam in the 12th to send the Sox faithful into hysterics.

PREDICTION: White Sox 8, Cubs 4

GAME 6

At U.S. Cellular Field

1:05 p.m. June 28, WGN/CSN

These six games flew by, didn't they? Oh, right, they haven't started yet. Still, when this one comes around, we'll be wishing for more City Series games. On second thought, Chicago probably couldn't handle it. Just like the Sox can't handle the Cubs in this one as Kosuke Fukudome puts on a hitting show.

PREDICTION: Cubs 5, White Sox 1

WHITE SOX 5, MILWAUKEE 4
CUBS 3, MINNESOTA 2

Guillen rips Wrigley—again

Chicago Tribune

MILWAUKEE The White Sox's series with the Cubs was two days away, but manager Ozzie Guillen had no problem warming up for his dreaded visit to Wrigley Field.

Guillen emphasized he holds no grudges against the Cubs, their front office, manager Lou Piniella or their fans.

"But one thing about Wrigley Field, I puke every time I go there," Guillen said Sunday morning. "That's just to be honest. And if Cub fans don't like the way I talk about Wrigley Field, it's just Wrigley Field. I don't say anything about the fans or anything now. But Wrigley Field, they got to respect my opinion. That's the way I feel."

And if his comments upset the Cubs fans, "I don't care if they hate me," Guillen said. "They don't feed my kids. If they hate me, that's cool."

» Sox ace Mark Buehrle took no chances Sunday as soon as he clubbed Braden Looper's 3-2 pitch in the third inning.

Buehrle said he put his head down until he reached second base and heard the crowd roar as he hit his first major-league home run.

Buehrle's homer overshadowed his shaky pitching performance, and the Sox were able to joke about Buehrle's rare hitting feat after a 5-4 victory over the Brewers.

"Never say never in this game because I've done two things I've said I'd never do," said Buehrle, who pitched a no-hitter in 2007.

» Cubs hitting coach Gerald Perry was fired Sunday, but it didn't have an immediate effect on the offense as the Cubs finished their interleague series against the Twins.

Cubs batters didn't wear out the basepaths, although they did manage a 3-2 victory thanks to solid pitching and Ryan Theriot's RBI single in the ninth to avoid a sweep before the White Sox visit Wrigley Field on Tuesday.

Carlos Marmol earned the victory and Jesse Crain took the loss.

Cubs starter Ted Lilly continued his stretch of dominant pitching, leaving in a tied game in the eighth inning. Lilly's earned-run average in his last four starts at Wrigley is 2.17.

"But one thing about Wrigley Field, I puke every time I go there. That's just to be honest. And if Cub fans don't like the way I talk about Wrigley Field, it's just Wrigley Field."

1 How are you preparing yourself for this week's Cubs-White Sox series?

You can't really prepare yourself for uncontrollable vomiting.

Fukudome jersey? Check. "W" flag? Check. Inflated sense of importance for the series? Check.

Counting down to Bears training camp. Happy Jay Cutler Day. These two teams are mediocre at best!

Cubs, woo. Sox, woo. Sox sweep, woo. Just kidding Sox fans.

I'm upping the capabilities of the "Cubs suck" forum to handle the onslaught.

2 Who needs to do better in the Crosstown Classic: the Cubs or White Sox?

The Sox may well find a broken pool stick in the clubhouse with a note reading "Make it quick."

The Sox, or they'll be waving the white flag on this season soon.

Cubs. Kenny Williams owns a "happening" bar. Jim Hendry owns a not so happening Milton Bradley.

The Sox, but Jermaine Dye and Bobby Jenks fans may need it more.

They both should play at the top of their game to prepare for the Mechanical Revolution. HAHAAAAH!

3 When I heard that a survey found that more White Sox fans drink beer, I ...

... briefly considered telling my Cub fan friends, but didn't want to ruin their appetites.

... assumed Jimmy had been cheating on Cub Nation.

... knew there's no truth to the term "SHUT UP and drink your beer" on the South Side. We know ... you won in '05!

... realized Cubs' fans' dishonesty has no boundaries! Seriously.

... kept refreshing, but the numbers stayed the same. Can't be right.

4 The Kansas City Royals having seven men hit the disabled list is like ...

... the Cubs. A lot like the Cubs, in fact.

... a broken record playing the same song again and again ... and again.

... Kirstie Alley. DL or dieting ... They both had their heyday in the '80s, and it's a fruitless battle these days.

... waving the white flag and re-building. Not yet, Kenny!

... having Facebook and Twitter down at the same time. Truly exasperating.

5 What kind of advice will Michael Phelps offer in his new kids book?

Designate a trusted member of your entourage to screen the women who approach you.

Snitches get stitches and don't get to party with Olympic athletes anymore.

You can swim all you want, but you'll still find yourself up [bleep] creek!

Remember kids, assume the camera is always on.

Resistance is futile. At least, he should.

Strictly business

You say Calumet Beach is family oriented. Why?

Most people that go there just go with their families. Even teenagers or older kids, they go with their parents. It's not a lot of young kids who go by themselves. [Families] have cookouts, they play volleyball on the beach. Football maybe, or catch. Some of the bigger families go and use the baseball diamonds and have games and stuff. It's really cool.

So if a group of guys is hoping to go to the beach and hit on girls in bikinis, they should expect to have to do that in front of the girls' parents?

Um, well, there are a few times where people do go by themselves. But [mostly], yeah, if a group of guys were to [hit on girls], it would be in front of their families.

There must be some attractive twentysomethings on hand. What techniques do you have for ignoring eye candy and staying focused?

Well, really to me there's no eye candy because I'm engaged anyway.

I'm sure your fiancé will be glad you said that.

But I really don't ever notice anything. I'm too busy watching the patrons and making sure my guards are taken care of on hot days or making sure that their needs are met to do their job.

How to handle eye candy and suntan lotion propositions at Calumet Beach*By Matt Pais

"Pools are great, but during the summer I would not and could not work at a pool, indoor or outdoor," says Victor Flores. "I love the beach. All winter long that's what I think about, is going back to the beach."

The South Side native and year-round lifeguard has earned his adoration. After starting to swim actively in 4th or 5th grade, Flores, 24, became a lifeguard in 2001 and now works as a lifeguard at George Washington High School and Mann Park pool in the winter and, for the past eight summers, at Calumet Beach on the far South Side in the summer. "My dad took me there when I was younger, and that's like the only beach I've ever really gone to," Flores says. "That's my beach."

Clearly, the man knows what he's talking about.

What's the worst day you've ever had at the beach?

If you work skeleton crew (a small group that works before the whole crew starts), it's very cold on certain days. So I'd say the worst day had to be a few years ago. It was really cold, really rainy and really windy, but there were people in the water. And we had to be outside guarding them.

Have you ever said to someone, "Excuse me, do you realize how cold it is? Let's go inside."

I never have because no matter if we think it's cold or not, they came to the beach to swim or have a good time and we're supposed to be there just to provide that security and not to stop them from having fun. But I remember a guard of mine actually did tell a family like, "It's really cold. The water is 50-something degrees and you can get really sick."

Does it get awkward when the staff puts suntan lotion on each other? That doesn't happen at most offices.

No. Once in a while people ask, "Can you get my back? I can't reach it." But it's always right before people are going in, so it's quickly done and [you] hurry up and go to your next location.

You lifeguards are all business.

Yeah, we try.

Bryan Berrey

Where to see him:

» Chicago Stand-Up Run-Down, 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Lincoln Lodge. Lil Rel will perform in the same show but only on Saturday.

Bio: The Garfield Ridge native started doing stand-up when he was a junior at Notre Dame. Berrey, 25, works part time as a freelance Web developer while he polishes his act.

On his first paid gig: It was an animal shelter fundraiser at a biker bar in Indiana, attended by only six shelter workers and the five other comics. He got paid $25 for 10 minutes.

On open mic nights: "Open mics aren't a packed theater. Open mics are a barroom with hockey on, a fish tank, a Golden Tee machine and six drunk people who don't care what you have to say. ... There are nights when you're lucky if they turn the sound off for the Bears or the Cubs."

Tim Meadows

Where to see him:

» The Very Funny Show, 8:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. Friday, 7 p.m., 9:15 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Saturday at Zanies.

Bio: He gave himself five years in Chicago to make a living from comedy; otherwise he was headed back to Michigan to finish college. Within a year, he was working at Second City. Meadows, who now lives in Lincoln Park, co-stars in TBS' "The Bill Engvall Show."

On how Chicago helped shape his career:

"I always tell people that's where I became a man. I would not have gotten to where I am if I had stayed in Detroit."

On what it takes to make it: In Chicago, he performed improv seven nights a week to stay on top of his game. "I put in the hours. There was going to be no denying me. I was on fire."

By Leonor Vivanco
REDEYE

Milton Howery Jr., a.k.a. Lil Rel, snuck into the now-closed Lyons Den in North Center for his first open mic night when he was 19. He avoided getting carded because he arrived at the bar from the West Side by bus before the doorman started his shift and acted like he worked there.

All to get stage time to tell jokes.

"I don't think I cared what the crowd reaction was. It was just a big deal for me to go on stage and actually go up there and do material that I came up with," said Howery, now 29 and living in Bronzeville. "I could've ripped it or I could've bombed, I don't know. I was just happy to be up there."

He kept going into bars and clubs, honing his act when he wasn't in class at Harold Washington College or working two jobs. He offered to usher for free at the now-shuttered Riddles Comedy Club in Orland Park just to get five minutes on stage.

The work Lil Rel put in helped him become a full-time comedian, cracking jokes on shows including "P. Diddy Presents the Bad Boys of Comedy" on HBO and NBC's "Last Comic Standing," though he wasn't a finalist. This week, back in Chicago, he won't have to sneak on stage when he performs at the Comedy Blowout Hits Chi-Town as part of TBS' A "Very Funny" Festival: Just For Laughs, of which RedEye is a co-sponsor. The comedy festival, held for the first time in the U.S., runs officially Wednesday through Sunday and features more than 100 comedians.

In a city where improv and sketch comedy from the likes of the famed Second City can steal attention away from stand-up, TBS is casting the spotlight on Chicago and some of its local comics.

Chicago's own "SNL" and Second City alum Tim Meadows is set to host "The Very Funny Show" at Old Town comedy club stalwart Zanies, where performances by 30 stand-up comics Friday and Saturday will be filmed and broadcast in 10 half-hour episodes on TBS, premiering in November.

Airing acts from "The Very Funny Show" reinforces Chicago's reputation as a town for all comedy, including stand-up, said Dennis

Patti Vasquez

Where to see her:

» The Very Funny Show, 8:30 p.m. Friday at Zanies.

Vasquez, who lives in Jefferson Park, has been performing for 13 years (full-time since 2001). She didn't think of being a comic until she saw Margaret Cho on TV. She dropped out of grad school at Northwestern University and based her act around stories about her Irish father and Mexican mother.

On stand-up being overshadowed by sketch comedy:

"When tourists ask me where Second City is, I say, 'I don't know, but I know where Zanies is,' even though [Second City] is right down the street."

On Chicago providing fodder for jokes: "There's a list that came out about how Chicago was voted hardest drinking city in the country. ... And they had another list that said we were the most obese city in the country. Remember when those lists used to be the best places to retire and lowest crime rates? When did it become name-calling? You're just a big, fat drunk, you big pig. 'Drunken pig' is not really a city slogan. We're trying to get the Olympics."

Best Chicago joke: "My dad was a cab driver for 50 years. I could never ask him for directions on how to get anywhere because he only knew the longest way to get there."

Adamovich, senior vice president and general manager of comedy festivals for TBS.

But "making it" isn't easy for local stand-up comics. They work countless open mic nights, struggle to make money and fend off hecklers. RedEye caught up with comedians appearing in Just For Laughs to talk about starting their careers in Chicago and what they find funny about the city. ## Hannibal Buress

Where to see him:

- » Masters of Comedy
8:30 p.m. Wednesday at Zanies
- » Homecoming, 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at Lincoln Lodge
- » The Very Funny Show, 10:30 p.m.
Friday at Zanies

He grew up in Galewood and got bit by the performance bug at Southern Illinois University. Buress, 26, has gone from performing at open mic nights to hosting gigs at his friend's house to headlining at Zanies. He now lives and performs in New York.

On poking fun at Chicago: "The Bean is useless, you know? I never walk down Michigan Avenue and think, 'You know what we need right here? A big piece of chrome so people can walk under it and look at distorted reflections of themselves.'"

On how he feels when he takes the stage: "I get excited. If it's a [crappy] show, a small show in the back of a bar with seven people there, I'm not as amped as I would be to do Zanies or Lakeshore [Theater] on a Saturday night when it's packed."

The Unaired Bozo Circus Parody

Ellen's Bigger Longer and Wider Show

7 p.m. Wednesday, Chicago Theatre, 175 N. State St.

Ellen DeGeneres welcomes Kanye West, David Blaine and Nick

Cannon, as well as an assortment of variety acts. And yes, she will be dancing.

"I don't know what would happen to me if I broke a hip, I think the show would be over," she said during a recent conference call. "... I literally will be in a doctor's office, and somebody will say you're not dancing, like I'm supposed to dance anywhere that I am. So yes, I'm sure I'll dance."

David Alan Grier: Comedy You Can Believe In

7 p.m. Friday, The Vic Theatre, 3145 N. Sheffield Ave.

David Alan Grier hosts this night of comedy that includes Aries Spears, Mark Curry, Bruce Bruce, Jo Koy and Marina Franklin. He's also planning to throw a little of his own comedy in the show.

"It's just coming up with a great opening bit. ... I'll try to come up with stuff that's funny, to stretch your comedy laughter dollar," he told RedEye. "As opposed to 'just the dude that's hosting.'"

Lisa Lampanelli

7 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday, Chicago Theatre, 175 N. State St.

The insult comic returns to Chicago for a pair of shows. She's not unhappy about it.

"Don't care," she told RedEye when asked about her excitement for the shows. "You're nothing to me. You mean nothing special."

America's Lovable Queen of Mean told us more, but nothing that's fit to print here. So read more from all of these interviews at tr.im/showpatrol.

Edie Falco as Nurse Jackie
SHOWTIME

TV
Nurse Jackie
9:30 p.m. Monday, Showtime

As Nurse Jackie, Edie Falco takes a tried-and-true TV staple—the tarnished saint—and makes it into another Emmy-worthy character (not unlike her Carmela Soprano). She transcends the material given her, which is good, by the way, but nothing new, as her Jackie pops pills and cheats on her sweet hubby but thrives in her job of healing the sick. It’s a tour-de-force performance. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

FASHION
Nedim Clutch
$65 at Nine West

This Nine West bag is the best new summer clutch I’ve found. The mixed materials on the front—sequins, studs, beads—make it stand out from the crowd. A surefire conversation starter, it also fits right in with the safari and tribal-chic trend in stores now.

JOANNA GUSTAFSON FOR REDEYE

ALBUM
Street Sweeper Social Club
Street Sweeper Social Club

Former Rage Against the Machine guitarist Tom Morello and Boots Riley of hip-hop set The Coup form the perfect marriage on the fiery, politically charged “Street Sweeper Social Club.” For Morello—who grew up in Libertyville and majored in political science at Harvard—the disc is in the vein of Rage’s anti-capitalism approach and his recent CD “The Nightwatchman.” The innovative axman, playing both guitar and bass, keeps things simple with his trademark dirty riffs, allowing Riley to maintain a tight flow. JOHN KOSIK, AP

Boom Blox Bash Party
$39.99 for Nintendo Wii

Boom Blox Bash Party offers more of the block-topping physics mayhem of the original game while shoring up its weaknesses and adding a healthy dose of new stuff. There’s more of everything—more “blox”; more toys to knock them over with, such as a slingshot and a cannon; more cute, blocky characters; and more ways to play. Players can now upload levels they design and download new ones freely, and each game type has an option to search for more levels of that kind.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY GEMINI

May 21-June 21

You're reconsidering your current romantic situation. Jupiter is going retrograde, making you unsure. If you're married, you suddenly could wonder how long it will last. If you've been happily single, now you're thinking it would be nice to settle down.

Cancer

June 22-July 22

The sun enters your sign this week, and this will give you four weeks of positive energy. Even though you've been down on yourself lately, you'll soon snap out of it. Suddenly, you realize that you're a total hottie or a completely gorgeous gal.

Leo

July 23-Aug. 22

You're ready for a big change. The summer solstice has you in a restless and lusty mood. You'll propose something big to your honey of the moment. Or you'll suggest a sudden getaway with that new lover who has known you for only two weeks.

Virgo

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Four planets are working together to get you laid. Even you shouldn't be able to goof up this cosmic alignment. Everywhere you go, you'll have opportunities to get sweaty and wild with people. Take up that invitation you just can't resist.

Libra

Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You're in a light-hearted mood, joking with your friends. Mercury has you playing the tease. You could lead somebody on, making him think that he has a chance with you. Or you'll act all innocent when a girl asks you out, conveniently "forgetting" that you happen to be married.

Scorpio

Oct. 24-Nov. 21

A friendly sun has you feeling mellow. So your ex turned out to be a total rat. C'est la vie. So your current lover is displaying psychotic tendencies. Stuff happens. Your positive attitude is admirable but don't ignore reality.

Sagittarius

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You could have a flirty discussion with someone, courtesy of a seductive moon. Suddenly you're thinking about hooking up with this new character in your life. But are you willing to set aside everything else you have going on for just this person?

Capricorn

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

As the sun moves opposite your sign, you need to be gentle on yourself. So you screwed up your last six relationships. Sometimes life comes with a learning curve. So you're not yet happily married with two rugrats. Give it time.

Aquarius

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You could be feeling sentimental about the one who got away. You're thinking about the curvy girl you dated in high school or the muscled jock you crushed on in college. Jupiter in retrograde could inspire you to look him or her up on the Internet.

Pisces

Feb. 19-March 20

Saturn is reminding you that love takes work. You could have a "to do" list about things you want to fix in a current relationship. Or you might be putting together some ideas about self-improvement projects. It's all good.

Aries

March 21-April 19

The moon has you kicking back and relaxing. You're in the mood to flirt and to have some harmless fun. Just remember—your definition of "fun" could mean "falling in love" for somebody else. Don't make any promises that you have no intention of keeping.

Taurus

April 20-May 20

You'll make the first move as Mars makes you bolder than ever. You'll have no shame as you hit on that married friend or that sexy stranger. You want what you want, and you refuse to apologize for it. Just call you the Master Seducer.

Aerosmith rocks the Midwest, chills in Chicago

Aerosmith refused to let bad weather rain on their parade.

The old-school rockers kicked off their summer tour Wednesday night in St. Louis after a three-year hiatus, but they almost didn't perform after severe weather warnings were issued for the area around the outdoor Verizon Wireless Amphitheater. As rain, thunder and lightning rolled through the venue, concertgoers were instructed to go back to their cars until the storm passed.

Backstage, Steven Tyler told me he wasn't going to let a little storm prevent them from rocking out. He added that the band has been in the studio working on a new album and has never sounded better.

After a delay of about an hour, the boys hit the stage and played a full set, including classic hits such as "Sweet Emotion," "Love In An Elevator" and "Uncle Salty."

After the show they hopped straight on their private plane and jetted to Chicago. They crashed in the Windy City until their show at Alpine Valley in Wisconsin on Saturday night. In between, Tyler was spotted walking around the Gold Coast with his girlfriend and their little white dog.

Ready to run

I caught up with Bears star Devin Hester on Saturday night at the Red Bull Air Race party in Detroit, and he shared with me his outlook for the upcoming football season. Hester is feeling extremely optimistic about the new Bears on the roster, especially quarterback Jay Cutler. "It was a great and unexpected move," Hester said. "I am expecting a really good season." Hester said he hopes to be down in Miami next February for the Super Bowl.

Hester, who is a spokesman for Red Bull, rode in a helicopter with camera crews videotaping the race planes during the qualifying round on Saturday afternoon. Hester said he was chosen to represent the thrill-seeking company because of his love of "speed" and "having fun."

SIGHTINGS

Oprah Winfrey dined at Spiaggia on Thursday night with members of her team from the Oprah Winfrey Network. » "SNL's" Seth Meyers hung out at Underground on Friday night.

» "Celebrity Apprentice" contestant and Playboy Playmate Brande Roderick celebrated her birthday at Manor on Friday night. » All the members of Black Eyed Peas hung out at Enclave on Saturday night and performed, complete with backup dancers. » Actor Jon Favreau hosted a dinner Saturday at the Four Seasons, where the Gene Siskel Film Center honored George Lucas. » Bears player Greg Olsen sang karaoke at The Original Mother's on Saturday night as Jay Cutler looked on. » Asher Roth and Akon performed for a sold-out crowd at Manor on Saturday night.

It's just like your profile—only slightly more vain

This weekend, Facebook launched a capability to let users personalize their pages with something you might consider a vanity URL. So instead of the Facebook address followed by a seemingly random assortment of Web gibberish, John Doe's page can now look something like facebook.com/johndoe.

On Friday, the techies and early adopters were buzzing about the opportunity to mark their place on the Web. RedEye has to imagine celebs will get in on the act soon—if they haven't already. Their fake Facebook profiles might look a little something like this ...

Geeked for 'Greek'

"Greek" fans who want Scott Michael Foster's Cappie and Spencer Grammer's Casey to finally get back together may not have to wait much longer—that is, if Foster gets his way.

Foster, who was born in Winfield and spent his early childhood in Carol Stream, hinted to RedEye on Friday that things are looking up for the couple in Season 3, which begins Aug. 31.

"I think that's going to happen, at least I want it to," Foster said. "[The writers] seem to be toying with the idea."

You can see just how close the couple gets when the Season 2 finale airs at 7 p.m. Monday on ABC Family.

“I kind of noticed ... this strange parallel to the movies I was doing and my life off screen. It started with 'The Good Girl.' Then that evolved into 'Rumor Has It,' followed by 'Derailed,' and then there was 'The Break-Up.' ... So if any of you have a project titled 'Everlasting Love with an Adult, Stable Male' ...”

THE VELVET ROPE

Splitsville for Usher?

Usher filed for divorce Friday from Tameka Foster Raymond, less than two years after their glitzy wedding. The singing superstar filed the petition in Superior Court in Atlanta, but records posted to the court's Web site gave no details. Several times during their relationship Usher came forward publicly to defend Tameka from negative blog chatter. They have two young sons together.

Bonnarific!

Bruce Springsteen lifted the Bonnaroo crowd up, and Triumph the Insult Comic Dog planned to bring it down (playfully, of course). While acknowledging hard times in his Sunday set at the Tennessee music festival, Springsteen also took a request for "Santa Claus is Coming to Town." Meanwhile, Nine Inch Nails frontman Trent Reznor declared his band's set its "last show ever in the United States." Throughout, Triumph staged his usual antics for an upcoming remote report for Conan O'Brien's "Tonight Show."

Yes, he kisses girls

Somehow, Adam Lambert's sexuality still is making news. After telling Rolling Stone he's gay, the "American Idol" runner-up told "20/20" on Friday he's "been known to make out with girls from time to time," according to ew.com. He added: "I wouldn't ever give myself the label bisexual, but bi-curious, yeah." OK, that clears things up.

THE DIGIT

$33.4 million

Moviegoers love a hangover, apparently. The what-happens-in-Vegas comedy "The Hangover" was No. 1 again over the weekend, according to studio estimates, making it the first summer movie to finish atop the box-office charts for two weekends in a row.
